Among the many gunners that searched the river marshes for game on Monday was Warren C. Allen, the ten-year-old son of Amos R. Allen, who killed nineteen rail birds out of twenty-one shots.

Mrs. Edward J. Winder, acting as chaperon for her two daughters, was among the many China Lane guests that enjoyed the delightful moonlight excursion that left Bristol on Wednesday evening of last week.

Miss Clara L. Elzey, a graduate of the colored high school of Wilmington, Del., has returned home to her relatives in West Bristol township after having been absent for four years. Miss Elzey also expects to spend a few days with friends in Philadelphia.

William P. Betz had a narrow escape from being killed by the cars on last Tuesday while his team was crossing the railroad at South Bristol with a load of gravel. One of the wheels broke and let it down on the track as an express train was coming but was gotten off just as the train passed without any damage.

A social function was given on Tuesday afternoon at Croydon station by Mrs. Weaymans for her son George as a winding up of a delightful vacation. Among those present were Beatrice and Phoebe Chambers, Hortense Vandegrift, Katie Clark and Warren O. Allen. The young folks spent a very pleasant afternoon and returned to their respective homes feeling highly elated by the success of the affair.

On Saturday last Mrs. E. J. Winder, Sr., while on her way to Croydon station, opposite the farm of B. F. Allen, encountered a huge bald eagle, which having the aggressive part of his nature aroused through some unknown cause, attacked the woman in a fierce manner. The only weapon of defence she had was an umbrella which she vigorously applied with stunning effect. The battle was long and terrific but the lady came off victorious and was rewarded by seeing her foe vanquished, it having succumbed to the repeated blows that were rained upon it by Mrs. Winder's muscular arms. The bird was a very rare specimen and measured 8 feet 2 9/12 inches from tip to tip.

The members of the Clover Bay Club held an old-time house warming on Sunday last in honor of the completion of their new club house erected on the premises of John Randall. The club employed the services of Custer's band whose sweet strains broke the silence that heretofore reigned in the quiet place. Among the invited guests of the neighborhood were J. Randall and Robert H. Neeley. There were about one hundred and fifty present from Philadelphia, who all participated in the festivities of the occasion and the lateness of the hour when our friends returned home was proof that they had all enjoyed a good day's outing.

The Republican convention was held at Doylestown on Monday last, and our coworker and staunch defender of Quayism, John Birkey, was unanimously nominated and elected Chairman of the Republican Committee. It is to be hoped that he will be treated with more fairness and justice than has been accorded our ex-Committeeman, Hon. William C. Mayne. The fact is very evident and Mr. Mayne's political opponents have not been slow to discover that nature has been more generous in bestowing upon him more grey matter in the cerebrum of his brain than she has on some of his opponents, and this fact being known accounts for the petty envious jealousies which have been aroused and so plainly shown. It cannot be denied that he is the recognized leader of Bristol township. The able way in which he has handled the work and filled the position as Chairman, has won for him the applause of all good thinking people of Bucks county, and it has been noticed also that from under the great avalanche of unkind and unjust and above all the untruthful criticisms he has evinced no desire to retaliate in the same spirit. That being due to the fact that his great intellect and broad mindedness places him so far above his inferiors that his enemies can never reach him. It would be well instead of spending so much valuable time in denouncing our leader in terms of scathing sarcasm, were they to sit at his feet and learn wisdom of which truth has been demonstrated times without number, they stand so greatly in need thereof.

News of the County

Special Correspondence from Near-by Towns

DOYLESTOWN.

The Republicans of Bucks county held their convention on Monday and placed a strong ticket in the field. While the nomination of candidates was the official business of the convention another matter received attention, something in which the leaders of the party were more interested than in the convention proceedings. It was the open declaration of war made by prominent leaders against the Senatorial aspirations of Assemblyman Frank G. Edwards, of Bristol. There was a tremendous crowd here for an off-year and it was the Edwards matter that brought them, the preliminary movement consisting of a fight for County Committeemen.

The story of Bristol's contest resulting in the election of anti-Edwards men is well known, and the town sent nearly 600 people here. Back of the anti-Edwards movement are Hon. Robert M. Yardley and ex-District Attorney John C. Swartley, of Doylestown; Hon B. F. Gilkeson, Joseph R. Grundy and Postmaster E. W. Minster, of Bristol; Register John T. Fish, of Falls; and Charles T. Eastburn, of Yardley. Other prominent Republicans are also interested in the matter. The old leaders who have turned in against Edwards declare that they elected a majority of the County Committee. Thus the fight for the State Senatorship a year hence has begun. It was the chief talk of the convention and for days after. The leaders referred to feel that Assemblyman Edwards and his friends have attempted to exercise too much control and hence their present attitude. As for the convention there was entire harmony and an excellent ticket was named. Several candidates were nominated by acclamation, having no opponents and only one ballot was taken for Treasurer and Register of Wills.

The resolutions were a matter of deep interest and endorsed the State ticket, which met with the approval of the convention. Nothing was embodied in the resolutions to offend any faction, and there is no doubt but that Republicans are pleased with the county ticket and will give it their undivided support. The following is the ticket in full:

COUNTY TREASURER,
Charles G. Knight.
REGISTER OF WILLS,
Harvey D. Fellman.
CORONER,
William H. Kunsman.
DIRECTOR OF THE POOR,
Samuel J. Penrose.
COUNTY SURVEYOR,
Harry Shelly.

The proceedings of the convention in detail follow:

The most conspicuous feature of the convention, considering the fact that this is an off-year, was the large attendance. Bristol alone sent nearly six hundred delegates, who entered town preceded by a brass band with former Banking Commissioner Gilkeson and Postmaster Minster at the front of the procession. Hundreds of Republicans thronged the court house lawn about the stand. Much of the interest displayed was centered in the election of County Committeemen for the coming year. The State ticket was also discussed with reference to the probable action of the convention. Preceding the call to order the various candidates were hurrying here and there looking after their interests.

The convention was called to order by County Chairman Shelly at 11 o'clock and the call was read by Secretary McIntosh. Oscar P. Chamberlain, of Tullytown, was placed in nomination by B. F. Gilkeson for permanent Chairman and was elected by acclamation. The Secretaries of the County Committee were elected Secretaries of the convention. The call of districts was then made, each district naming its member of the Committee on Resolutions.

The following candidates were placed in nomination:

COUNTY TREASURER.
Charles G. Knight, Northampton.
Albert S. Paxson, Southampton,
George G. Fetterolf, Langhorne.

REGISTER OF WILLS.
Harvey D. Fellman, Richland.
Samuel A. Krauss, Quakertown.
Jordan F. Stover, Riegelsville.

DIRECTOR OF THE POOR.
Samuel J. Penrose, Doylestown township.

CORONER.
William H. Kunsman.

COUNTY SURVEYOR.
Harry Shelly, Quakertown.

There being no contest for the last three offices the candidates were nominated by acclamation.

George G. Fetterolf then addressed the convention withdrawing his name for County Treasurer in a speech that elicited applause. The convention then adjourned until 2 o'clock.

When the convention reassembled at 2 o'clock there remained to be nominated but two candidates, those for Treasurer and Register of Wills.

Before a ballot was taken the following resolutions were read by Dr. A. H. Clayton, of Richboro, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions:

THE RESOLUTIONS.

We, the Republicans of Bucks county, assembled in annual convention to nominate candidates for county offices, hereby reaffirm our allegiance to the time honored principles of our party.

Believing that its principles and our most cherished institutions depend upon and are indissolubly linked with all that pertains to local government, we regard it as eminently appropriate to voice our unqualified indorsement of the administration of President William McKinley, an administration unparalleled for its remarkable achievements. While other nations are staggering under the burdens entailed by war, this country has not only escaped financial depression, but is enjoying a period of unprecedented prosperity. We rejoice that following the victories of our army and navy in the prosecution of a humane war that gave to the oppressed of other lands the liberty we enjoy, there has come to our own country that peace and prosperity ever found where work is abundant and the toiler fully requited. Our National conditions we regard as furnishing the highest exemplification of the wisdom of Republican statesmanship.

We approve the course of Congressman Irving P. Wanger in his support of the National administration, and of the measures whose enactment has redounded to the welfare and glory of the country.

The Republicans of Bucks county propose to do all that may be done in advancing the principles of the party, in promoting the success of its candidates and in securing and sustaining leadership that shall be wise, tolerant and statesmanlike. In performing our part in the work of the Republican organization we resent any dictation from outside sources as to the part we shall play in our local affairs or in tickets to be nominated. While disapproving some of the legislation enacted by the last Legislature, we cordially approve a majority of the Acts which have become laws upon our statute books, and especially do we approve of the legislation enacted in the interest and protection of the farmer by the passage of the oleomargarine laws.

We are assured that the administration of the county offices by Republicans in recent years has been such as will inspire implicit confidence in the integrity and capability of the candidates this day nominated, and we pledge to them our hearty and undivided support.

Therefore, believing, as we do, in the principles of our party, having implicit confidence and faith in its disposition and power to correct that which may be evil, and having no faith in the platitudes and promises of the Democratic party, and in view of its record for years, we sincerely and conscientiously urge the support of our State and County tickets.

The resolutions were read a second time by Chairman Chamberlain, as Dr. Clayton could not be heard by a portion of the crowd. The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

The ballot for Treasurer and Register was then taken, resulting as follows:

County Treasurer, Knight 135; Paxon 29.

Register of Wills, Fellman 133; Krauss 2; Stover 29.

Knight and Fellman were declared nominated.

The County Committee was authorized to fill any vacancy that might occur and the convention adjourned.

Doylestown will entertain on Tuesday, September 17, the Survivors of the 128th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. Two companies of this regiment were formed in Bucks county and were led into battle at Antietam, on September 17, 1862, by Colonel Samuel Croasdale, of Doylestown, who was subsequently killed in active service. Col. Croasdale left Doylestown with the regiment shortly after he had been admitted to practice at the Bucks County Bar and was the only field officer from the county killed in service.

The appointment of a committee of the local organization of the Sons of Veterans to arrange for the annual encampment of that order here next year suggests that Doylestown will have a big contract on hand. It is estimated that 2500 people will seek entertainment here during the week, which will about double the population. It will not be an easy matter to provide them with lodging and Doylestown may have bitten off more than she can "chaw." The encampment will take place next June.

At their September meeting the County Commissioners will take action upon the request of President Davis, of the Bucks County Historical Society, for an appropriation for the Society as provided for by Act of Assembly. It a meeting held last Friday the Commissioners received bids for the bridge over Martin's creek, in Tullytown. The contract was awarded to Nelson & Buchanan at $6,368. The highest bid was $11,100.

TULLYTOWN.

A. B. Headley and Dr. C. H. Read spent last Tuesday fishing at Avalon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Burton and her son Horace are spending a week at Atlantic City.

Martin Ulrick, Jr., and wife, of Germantown, are visiting Mr. Ulrick's father, Martin Ulrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Johnson and family have returned from a week's sojourn at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ulrick and son are spending two weeks with Martin Ulrick on his farm here.

Harry J. Tryon and William J. Wagenknight, of Philadelphia, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Wagenknight last Sunday.

Quite a large number of residents of Tullytown attended the Merchants' Picnic at Burlington Island Park on Wednesday, August 28th.

Richard Lewis, of Germantown, Miss Lauretta Hanault, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Lanahan and daughter are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ulrick.

The annual Harvest Home of the M. E. Church was held on the school house lawn on Thursday, the 29th inst. The attendance was not as large as usual, but those attending were enjoyably entertained. Supper was served from 6 o'clock throughout the evening.

The proposed mending of the bicycle path between Tullytown and Morrisville failed to materialize owing to the failure of the Morrisville contingent to keep their part of the agreement. The money that had been collected was therefore used by common consent for a symposium for the subscribers to the fund. While the result is to be deplored by bicycle riders generally, those who attended the entertainment are satisfied that they got more than their money's worth.

Tullytown's delegation voted for Knight and Fellman at the convention at Doylestown last Monday. The re-election of O. P. Chamberlain as Committeeman is generally satisfactory to the Republicans here. The seventeen Republicans who attended the convention were A. B. Headley, Dr. C. H. Read, E. E. Johnson, A. R. Wagenknight, Theodore Burton, O. P. Chamberlain, William P. Peters, Edward English, Allan Cole, Harry Morgan, James Lasher, Howard Shafer, George Lasher, Louis Fisher, Amos Lovett, Mahlon Lovett, Jr., and Barry Starkey.

At the regular meeting of Council Monday evening, the remainder of the bills for the new sidewalks was passed. The Street Commissioner reported that 1047 feet or about one-fifth of a mile of new walk had been laid at a cost of about $490. The cost per foot was less than that of the walk laid last year. It was decided to scrape and plough out the gutters of the Bordentown road from Main street to Wheat Sheaf lane. The Street committee was instructed to proceed with the filling of the approaches of the proposed bridge over Martin's creek, now under contract, immediately upon the completion of the bridge. After the other business had been disposed of A. R. Wagenknight resigned as Street Commissioner and William P. Peters was elected to succeed him.

PENN'S MANOR.

Corn promises to be a full crop.

The potato crop in the Manor will be short this year. Some have begun to dig.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Seidensticker were visiting among relatives in the Manor for a few days.

Quite a number of people from this section attended the convention at the county seat on last Monday.

On last Sunday evening the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Chapel. Rev. A. S. Pittenger officiated. Quite a number responded to the invitation.

Our schools here opened again on last Monday with Miss Greathead and Miss Rees as teachers in the Manor school. The Creek school is open again also with Miss Wright as teacher.

William C. Mershon, one of our esteemed citizens, was very severely burned or the ill-fated steamer "City of Trenton." He was brought up to Morrisville on last Sunday to the home of his sister near the borough, where he is well cared for. The sincere and heartfelt sympathy of the neighborhood is extended to him and his family in their sore affliction. May he soon recover.

MORRISVILLE.

The Yardley trolley is again in operation.

Mrs J. R. Moon, of Camden, is visiting Mrs. M. T. Moon.

Charles Sines has broken ground for a dwelling on Falls avenue.

Raymond Harrop is convalescing from his recent attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Richard Page died of consumption at her residence on Moreau street last Saturday.

The annual meeting for the election of officers for the Mutual Building and Loan Association of Bucks and Mercer counties will be held on the 12th inst.

At the meeting of town council on Tuesday night a remonstrance against the passage of the Pennsylvania railroad ordinance was presented, with over 200 signatures. It was referred to the ordinance committee without comment.

William Mershon, who was badly scalded in the "City of Trenton" wreck, was brought up here on a train last Sunday and was taken to the residence of his brother-in-law, John Brooks, being unable to stand removal to his home in Penn's Manor.

Giles Wotten, aged about 60 years, a farmer of Stony Hill, two miles and a half from Morrisville, was drowned together with his horse some time on Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning in the canal at the foot of Elmer street, Trenton. At five o'clock Wednesday morning a Trenton policeman discovered the head of the horse protruding from the water. Help was summoned and it was found that attached to the horse was a wagon, and in the body of the vehicle was Wotten.

It is said that Wotten was seen Tuesday night attempting to drive up the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad at Hamilton avenue. He was prevented by gate tender Tierney.

At that time he was accompanied by a woman who was said to be Phoebe Armstrong, of Hudson street, Trenton. The woman denied later that she was in the wagon. Wotten, as far as is known, had no relatives in this country. He was an Englishman and it is thought he has a wife in that country. The supposition is that Wotten thought Elmer street continued across the canal and drove directly into it. There is no guard rail at the point and at night it is regarded as being extremely dangerous. An inquest has not yet been decided upon. William G. Howell, of Morrisville, who has frequently acted as business agent for Wotten, will look after the funeral arrangements and the possible settlement of the estate. James Henry, a neighbor, will look after the stock and little home in which Wotten lived alone, until some final disposition is made.

OXFORD VALLEY.

C. C. Wildman will lead Christian Endeavor on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Bilbee, of Yardley, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Preaching in the Chapel on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by Rev. C. M. Haddaway.

Several Republicans from this neighborhood attended the county convention at Doylestown on Monday.

Misses Anna May Bicking and May Henry, of Hulmeville, were visiting Miss Jennie Wildman on Sunday.

John Hobman, Jr., and wife, of Philadelphia, were visiting at Joseph B. Schaffer's on Sunday and Monday.

Miss Martha Spencer went to Carversville, Pa., on Saturday, near which place she began teaching school on Monday.

Some of our sportsmen spent Labor Day fishing on the Delaware. They returned with the usual luck—an empty basket.

The public school in this village opened on Monday with Arthur Hellyer, of Penn's Park, Pa., as teacher. The Edge Hill school opened with Miss Ella Rice, of Philadelphia, as teacher.

The monthly business meeting of the C. E. Society convened at the home of Miss Etta Nowell on Tuesday evening of last week. The Society seems to be in a prosperous condition both spiritually and financially. The principal of the mortgage on the chapel has been reduced twenty-five dollars during the past month.

The yearly meeting of the Sunday school was held in the chapel on Wednesday evening after prayer meeting. The usual order of business was transacted. All the officers of the past year were re-elected with the exception of the secretary. Miss Etta Nowell was elected to fill the vacancy.

PENN VALLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Williamson Wright took a trip up the Hudson on Thursday.

Miss A. M. Hendrickson, of Asbury Park, was the guest of Miss Mary P. Carter last week.

Mrs. Charles B. Hughes and Miss Meda M. Hughes were visitors at Princeton University last week.

Miss Ada Pancoast and Miss Mary Kendricks, of Philadelphia, were recent visitors at Mrs. Lydia Pancoast's.

Mrs. James F. Thorn and Misses Frances and Lillian Lovett, of Trenton, spent Wednesday of last week at George Lovett's.

The public school opened on Monday with Andrew J. Fleming in charge and the usual complement of first day pupils present.

Frank Lanning, a real estate dealer of Trenton, has purchased the store property formerly occupied by J. R. Breece, from Charles Buckman.

Charles Lovett, LeRoy B. Hughes and Michael Morgal accompanied the Vulcanized Rubber Company, of Morrisville, on their annual excursion to Atlantic City on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walton, who spent the month of August with Mrs. Walton's father, James Lovett, have gone to California, where Mr. Walton will locate in business.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Carter, Miss Mary P. Carter, John C. Carter, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Bartle, Miss Caroline M. Bartle, B. F. Muschert, Mrs. Joshua Bateman and Miss Viola Bateman were among the throng at Burlington Island Park on Wednesday of last week.

EMILIE.

M. Praul is building himself a new barn.

William Ettinger has been building an addition to his barn.

Mr. and Mrs. John LaRue returned from Atlantic City on Wednesday.

J. E. Underwood called on the patrons of the Downward fertilizers this week.

William Harrison, who is attending college at Northfield, Mass., is home on a ten days' vacation.

Miss Vanhorn, who has been ill with typhoid fever, has so far recovered that she expetes to start for her home at Beaver Meadows shortly.

A pleasant party under the management of Henry Lovett and Harry Wink hied themselves to Tullytown wharf on Saturday with the expectation of a fine day's sport on the water. Owing to the weather the party was obliged to stay near shelter. All had a good time nevertheless.

FALLSINGTON.

Miss Elizabeth Buzby, of Moorestown, N. J., has been visiting Henry W. Satterthwaite and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Conard, of Philadelphia, are spending a few days with James and Elizabeth Moon.

The general meeting of the smaller body of Friends was held in the meeting house here on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The local schools opened on Monday with a good attendance of scholars well refreshed by their summer vacations.

A telegraph pole near the railroad station was struck by lightning during the heavy electrical storm of last Saturday night.

Miss Mary Lovett, Miss Lucy Tatum and two sons of Henry Satterthwaite left yesterday for the Friends' boarding school at Westtown.

Quite a number of the Republicans of this place attended the county convention on Monday at Doylestown. John Fish and Watson Moon headed the delegation.

The Quarterly meeting of the Society of Friends last Thursday was not attended as well as usual, many being absent on account of the funeral of Pemberton Hutchinson.

The Fallsington Library opens tomorrow after having been closed for several weeks. Aprons of the library it should receive more generous support from residents of this locality. The annual fee is a small one and there are over 7000 books on the shelves so that $2 yearly will prove a good investment.

The Republican candidate for Governor of Iowa is a native of Pennsylvania. He is a resident of the capital, Des Moines.

Under the head of "Improvements," the Perkasie News states that the doctors of that thriving borough are busy vaccinating children.

Warner P. Roberts, of Yardley borough, is feeling his way to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Assembly. Three years ago Mr. Roberts withdrew as a candidate in favor of F. G. Edwards.

According to the Philadelphia Ledger Princeton has a bad case of hydrophobia, and a consequent mad dog apprehension. Yet there are many eminent physicians in large practice who say they never saw a case of genuine hydrophobia and never knew of one that would stand investigation.

Editor H. M. Woodmansee, of the Lansdale Reporter, is being boomed by his brethern of the press as a candidate for the Republican nomination of State Senator. The Republicans of Montgomery county could make no better selection. Mr. Woodmansee is vigorous in everything he undertakes and if given the least encouragement would send to the stables the candidate who had been announced as ready to make the fight of his life. A point, too, in favor of the Lansdale editor is that the votes of our sister county seem to have a preference for red-headed Senators.

The Gilkeson-Yardley-Grundy organization which will oppose F. G. Edwards for the Senate, has adopted the following declaration of principles: Candidates for the Assembly and Senate which shall receive the organization's support must be men of the highest type of Bucks county manhood; men, who, when elected will represent the best interests of this county, first, last and all the time; men, who, when they go to Harrisburg will enter the caucus of their party and for United States Senator vote for the person whom they feel assured their constituents desire, and in the end abide by the decision of the majority of the caucus. That is pure Republicanism.

In addition to electing a Justice of the Supreme Court and a State Treasurer, the people of Pennsylvania will be called upon this year to pass proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State. The proposed amendments will be found in the Gazette. The intention of the author of the first of these amendments is to enable the Legislature to pass a personal registration law, such as is in operation in New York at the present time. It is claimed that in no other way can the padding of Assessors' list of voters be prevented. The other proposed amendments relates to the ballot itself, and should this amendment become a part of the Constitution it would permit the use of voting machines. All of the proposed amendments have, as the Constitution requires, been passed upon by two successive Legislatures.

It is not pleasant to read the reports that the police of the three greatest cities in this country are notoriously corrupt and that the people of these great municipalities do not get the protection which they pay for. Probably the police force of Chicago is the most corrupt, for there almost every kind of crookedness is charged, even to an officer leaving his beat, doffing his uniform and immediately committing a highway robbery. So far as collusion with disorderly houses, the acceptance of bribes and winking at small depredations and blackmailing generally are concerned, we have no doubt every city will show its proportion of rogues in uniforms when the matter is investigated. It is a hopeful sign, however, that the police systems in the big cities are being probed. It is a matter in which every good citizen should lend assistance and we hope to see the work of reform taken up everywhere. The guardians of the peace by day and our homes by night should be men who can be trusted.

FOR A CHANGE OF THE RULES.

Those persons who attended the Republican convention on Monday were again forcibly reminded of the great injustice and inconvenience forced upon the members of the party by reason of the onerous rules which govern the party in the matter of making nominations.

The system is outrageous!

If any county in any State in the Union were compelled to turn from its present method to that in vogue in Bucks county the persons responsible for the change would undoubtedly be mobbed and burned at the stake.

There is no reason in Bucks county Republicans being subjected to the barbarism of the mass convention. We are charitable enough to believe that the present system continues to exist simply because it always has existed. There certainly can be no hidden motive on the part of the leaders in wishing to retain the present system. Even from the most practical standpoint there is no advantage in the mass convention. The greatest boss-ridden counties in the State operate a direct voting system. At the reorganization of the County Committee it is to be sincerely hoped that body will take the matter under consideration and recommend a change in the nominating system. The intelligent Republicans of Bucks county do not deserve to be compelled to participate in the present barbaric custom of making nominations.

Once again the Gazette pleads for the rights of the Republicans to register their choice for county offices at home.

A BATTLE BREWING.

The Republican county convention was held at Doylestown on Monday and an excellent ticket placed in the field for the suffrages of the voters. The convention was a representative one, delegates being present from practically all of the districts. The resolutions, which are printed in the Doylestown correspondence of this issue, are of the right character and should give no offence to any Republican. The worthy acts of the late Legislature are commended and there is no bestowal of fulsome praise for State and National leaders.

The interest attached to the nomination of a county ticket was far overshadowed by a contest that will be far-reaching in its effects. The fight that had been waging in the Bristol wards for several days and which culminated at the county seat on Monday was something more than the desire for places upon the county standing committee. It was the skirmish fight, preliminary to a general engagement which is to take place later between the old guard organization of the Republican party and a new combination that within the last two or three years has been supplanting the old "machine."

Becoming alarmed at the formidableness of the organization being built up by the coterie of Republicans which included F. G. Edwards, Frank F. Bell, Joseph W. Shelly and some lesser lights; B. F. Gilkeson, Robert M. Yardley, John C. Swartley, Joseph R. Grundy and their able lieutenants have oiled up the old "machine" and turned it in opposition to the Edwards faction.

The contest on Monday was a overwhelming defeat for the latter and purports to be a repudiation by the Republicans of Bristol of the Senatorial aspirations of Captain F. G. Edwards. While all the Edwards candidates for committeemen were signally defeated, it is extremely doubtful if the "Fighting Captain" will entertain any thoughts of surrender just yet. Judging from what we know of the character of the man, Monday's drubbing will only serve to make him put up a greater fight than ever and when the real issue is to be met—whether F. G. Edwards will be nominated for the Senate or not—then there will be a fight to write about.

The situation as it exists is rather a peculiar one, inasmuch as both factions now claim to be "regulars." Heretofore Edwards' triumphs have been won under an anti Quay standard, but it is now reliably reported that the erstwhile leader of the local "insurgents," along with Senator Flinn, made his peace with the State administration and will have the support of Stone, Elkin, Andrews, Eyre and others of stalwart fame, in his contest for the Senatorial nomination.

The Gilkeson-Yardley organization has placed Irvin Anton in the field to contest with Edwards. The ex-Sheriff is one of the best known Republicans in the county, is a splendid campaigner and will make a hard fight.

The outcome will be watched with interest.

WOMEN AND PUBLIC LIFE.

Edward McSweeny, an eminent Roman Catholic Priest, in advocating Woman Suffrage, declares that society is as a rule purer and better where men and women live move and work together. Men I know degenerate and in fact lose all civilization where the gentle, refining influence of woman is wanting. See the effect of woman's presence on the German beer garden, where husband and wife enjoy themselves together in a temperate, Christian manner, and contrast the latter with those drinking places where a woman is never seen.

It is evidently woman's sphere to soften the wild rough ways of society, so far at least as she may without detriment to her special duties. Should she decide to take part in politics, she will help to purify these, and then the vast number of men of intelligence and refinement who now avoid the polls will take a practical interest in good government.

There is too much materialism in these days, men are as mad as March hares in the quest of money, they need morality and religion, outside the temple door as well as inside, and by woman's aid the needs of society will be met.

So, all the while that we claim home as the province of woman, we hope she will help us in political matters generally, for that home is now coextensive with the city, nay with the country, with the world; women can not only go alone in the streets and parks, but can even cross the ocean and make a tour of Europe. Hence woman has a right to see that the streets are clean and orderly, the police respectful and efficient, objectionable resorts properly controlled, ferry boats safe and clean—in fact, that every department of the government is properly carried on. To give a respectable opinion on all these she should be educated, and it is chiefly to women of education that these remarks are addressed.

Of course, there may be some excitement, talk, alarm, at first, just as there was when Vassar College was first started, as there was and still is about our Catholic colleges for women. That's always the way when something new is advanced; there would be a tremendous protest in France today if unmarried girls went out for a walk without a chaperon, as they do without remark in New York and Baltimore.

I have no fear that any of these changes will do permanent harm, and look upon them as natural results of Christianity, of education, and of rational human liberty. Let us trust the instinct of sex. The true husband, father and brother will always retain his wife's, his daughter's, his sister's respect and deference, and they will aid the men by the superior sight which they are often found to possess.

The Pittsburg "ripper" seems to have kicked up and is doing a little ripping after all. Governor Stone thought he had pulled the teeth out of the instrument when A. M. Brown was appointed Recorder.

Our 28th Anniversary.

Quakertown Times.

The Bucks County Gazette, one of the best edited and neatest printed weeklies in lower Bucks, recently celebrated its 28th anniversary.

Lansdale Reporter.

The Bristol Gazette has entered upon its 29th year of usefulness. Jesse O. Thomas & Sons are the editors and publishers, and the Reporter is pleased to say the Gazette is well printed typographically, presents the local news with care, and bears evidence of brainy work on its editorial page.

Convention Notes.

The special train from Bristol carried 593 persons.

Frederick Stuckert, Esq., made his debut in Third ward politics—!!#&+!‡!

The yellow, blue, white and red badges of the four Bristol delegations were quite conspicious.

It is reported that Lower Bensalem was the only district in the lower end carried by the Edwards faction.

The biggest man in the convention was Wilson Lippincott, of the Third ward, Bristol—weight 460 pounds.

Some one should have taken a snap shot of Colonel Gilkeson's smile as he marched at the head of that great procession. The picture would serve an excellent purpose in illustrating a rubiform ad.

"Mayor" Wright, in his hurry to get away to see the ball game in Philadelphia, carried the vote of the First ward with him. Postmaster Minster furnished the convention with the needed information.

The Bristol committeemen elected were: First ward, John Jeffries; Second ward, Albert Leechner; Third ward, William Louderbough; Fourth ward, William Hardy. Edward Keating and John T. Smith were defeated for re-election.

The convention now-a-days without a special train from the lower end is no convention at all. The "specials" were started by the Gilkeson chairmanship fight in '95. Last year there were two trains, an anti-Quay flyer and a Quay express.

E. E. Johnson, of Tullytown, made a special trip from Atlantic City to vote with his delegation, and Amos B. Headley and Dr. Read postponed a fishing trip in order to be on hand. Tullytown Republicanism is true blue. That borough is entitled to an assembly nomination.

The Chairman announced that the First ward of Bristol would meet in "Shelly's office." While the great majority of the delegation went to Mr. Shelly's law office it seemed strange that some of the members understood the instructions to mean the district attorney's office.

Oscar P. Chamberlain's candidacy for the assembly is rolling on and gathering fresh impetus at every turn. The able manner in which he presided over the deliberations of the convention was everywhere remarked, and the impression created was entirely favorable. Mr. Chamberlain's candidacy for legislative honors is but in its incipiency, but there is every prospect that in time he will be a leader in the contest.

The number of Republicans in the Fourth ward has increased so materially that there is a prospect of the Democrats being defeated there hereafter. The old poll book credits the district with 125 Republicans, but those figures have been greatly augmented recently. There were 140 alleged Republicans from the Fourth in Doylestown on Monday and there must have been two or three that stayed home. It is time to make a recount. On the above figures the district should be entitled to another delegate.

The Excursion that Failed.

The excursion which was to have been run to Washington Park last Saturday afternoon by Good Will Hose Co., No. 3, did not take place. Nearly a thousand people had gathered on the wharf ready to take the boat, when the committee went among them announcing that the excursion had been abandoned and commenced to refund the money. The reason for this action was the failure of the boat company to fulfill their part of the agreement and send the "Twilight" to carry the excursionists to the park. A prominent member of the hose company makes the following statement which will enlighten the public and enable them to place the blame where it belongs:

All the arrangements for the excursion were made with Mr. Fox, the general manager of the company. It was agreed to run the excursion on the percentage plan, each party to receive 50 per cent of the profits. It was specially stipulated that the steamer "Twilight" should convey the excursionists to Washington Park, leaving Bristol at 2 P. M. and that the "Columbia" should run down at 8 o'clock and bring the excursionists home. With this understanding the bills were printed and a copy presented to Mr. Fox and approved by him. On the Monday preceding the excursion, Mr. Fox was interviewed by a member of the committee who received the assurance from him that the arrangements were completed for the excursion on the following Saturday. On Saturday afternoon while the crowd was on the wharf awaiting the arrival of the "Twilight" the "Pokanoket" came down from Trenton. Believing that something was wrong, the committee called up Mr. Fox on the telephone, and were informed that the "Pokanoket" was to take the excursion down to the park. Mr. Fox was apprised that the boat would not hold the excursion as 1000 tickets had been sold. He suggested that we put on as many as the boat would hold, but when asked what he would do with the remainder, he said "he did not know." About this time the "Twilight" came in sight on her up trip and a request was made that her passengers be transferred to the "Pokanoket" and sent on to Trenton, while the "Twilight" could turn around and take the excursionists and the "Pokanoket's" passengers down to Philadelphia and the park. This request was promptly and decisively refused. As a last resort the committee asked that the "Columbia" take the excursion down on her four o'clock trip. Being told that she could take us only as far as Philadelphia there was left but one recourse and that was to abandon the excursion and refund the money. This was done, and the refreshments which had been purchased to sell on the boat were retailed at a reduced price at the hose house in the evening. By the failure of the boat company to keep the agreement both parties will lose about $250. It was subsequently learned that the "Twilight" was chartered to carry a moonlight excursion from Trenton on Saturday evening and the management had made a change in the boats without the consent or knowledge of our committee. A complete statement of our grievances has been sent to Mr. Perkins, the president of the Delaware River Navigation Company, who resides at Beverly, N. J., and it is expected his reply will be received before the meeting of the company, which will be held in the hose house on next Tuesday evening takes place, when some definite conclusion regarding the proper course to pursue, can be reached.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD RATES

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company now operates two through trains each way daily between Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and Buffalo.

MY LADY.

'Tis not her kind yet mastering air,
Nor is't the glory of her hair
Nor yet the beauty of her eyes,
With the deep look of soft surprise;
'Tis not the wit so often heard
Where wisdom lines each airy word;
'Tis not her humors grave and gay
That give my lady all her sway.
My dainty lady's sovereign power
Hangs not upon the passing hour;
The years may roll, and still the same
She is my lady and my dame.
My lady's face, my lady's voice,
These make my heart and soul rejoice,
And yet they fall full short of all
That keeps me still my lady's thrall.
The secret why my lady's reign
Can never turn to change or pain
Is known alike to man and elf,
It is that she is just—herself!

—Walter Herries Pollock in Longman's Magazine.

STALE BREAD AND NEW.

Indigestion Should Not Wait Upon One More Than the Other.

New bread is well known to be less digestible than stale bread, although it need not be so. There can be no question, however, of the vastly superior flavor of the former, and hence the preference of many people for hot rolls for breakfast. So far the palate would appear not to be a safe guide to digestion. Hot rolls, however, when masticated properly should not offer any difficulty to the digestive organs. A slice of stale bread on being broken with the teeth resolves into more or less hard, gritty particles which, unless they were softened by the saliva, would be almost impossible to swallow. The particles would irritate the throat and the gullet. The fact is, therefore, that man is compelled thoroughly to masticate and to impregnate stale bread with saliva before he swallows it. This act, of course, partially digests the bread and thus makes it in a fit state for digestion and absorption farther on in the alimentary tract. This is why stale bread appears to be more digestible than new bread.

New bread, on the contrary, is soft, doughy or plastic, and there appears to be no necessity to soften it with saliva; hence it escapes the preliminary digestive action of the ptyalin of the saliva. New bread, in other words, is in reality "bolted," and "bolting" accounts for many of the ills arising from dyspepsia. Accordingly hot rolls should be enjoyed for breakfast without fear of dyspepsia so long as the bread is good and so long as pains are taken to masticate it thoroughly.

When a dog is given a piece of meat, it will be noticed that he "bolts" it. There is not much reason why it should stay in the mouth, for the mouth, beyond reducing it by the aid of the teeth to a convenient mass, cannot deal with its digestion. But if the dog be given a piece of bread, supposing he eats it at all, he will keep it in his mouth for some time and will almost labor over it before swallowing it. The dog thus teaches a very important physiological lesson.

It is a curious fact that stale bread is not more dry than new bread, for on submitting stale bread for a short time to a high temperature it regains its condition of newness and becomes soft or plastic, and this in spite of the fact that some moisture is of necessity driven off in the operation. It is probable that in new bread there is free water present, while in stale bread the water is still there, but in a condition of true chemical combination, and it is this combination which compels us thoroughly to moisten and to masticate stale bread before we consign it to the gastric centers. —Lancet.

Ancient Bookkeeping Methods.

The collection of Assyrian and Babylonian records at the British museum has revealed more of the domestic life of people who lived 5,000 years ago than is known in the case of our own countrymen 1,000 years ago. Such was the opinion expressed by Mr. W. St. Chad Boscawen when he explained these relics to an interested audience. The clay bricks and cylinders beneath the glass cases were covered with characters testifying to a completely organized system of justice, marriage, divorce and commerce.

The bookkeeping of 5,000 years ago was shown to be wonderfully accurate. A curious form of record is that preserved in the form of baked clay tablets, which were inclosed in clay envelopes, also inscribed with the terms of the transaction, so that a double record provided against the possibilities of damage. The "open and closed evidence" spoken of by Jeremiah is supposed to refer to this system. The practice of recording on a brick the name of the king, of the building and of the city in which it was being erected has had the advantage in modern days that an odd brick may become the means of disinterring a city hitherto unknown.—London Chronicle.

Mexican Tortillas.

Tortillas are thin, flat cakes fried on a piece of sheet iron over a brasero of charcoal. They are made of corn soaked in limewater all night, then mashed into paste with a roller on a hollow stone called a metate, identical with those used by the Indians long before the Spanish invasion, the mass shaped into cakes by a deft patting of the hands that is often heard as one walks past humble Mexican homes. They have the sweet taste of the cereal, but are too tough for American digestion. Often they are folded together and used as scoops for the compounds, hot with chili pepper, that are dear to the Mexican palate or as plates on which to spread frijoles.—National Magazine.

AND WHEREAS, Bonds to the amount of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars in the aggregate, and numbered consecutively from one to two hundred and fifty, both inclusive, of the denomination of one thousand dollars each, together with coupons thereto attached for the semi-annual interest payments to become due on such bonds were duly issued by the said The Philadelphia and Bristol Passenger Railway Company in pursuance of the said Mortgage:

AND WHEREAS, The said bonds so issued by the terms thereof and of the said mortgage were payable on the fifteenth day of January, A. D., 1926, at the banking house of The Security Trust Company in the city of Philadelphia in gold coin of the United States of America of or equal to the present standard of weight and fineness, together with interest thereon (to be computed from the first day of June, A. D. 1896 at the rate of five per centum per annum) payable at the same place in the like gold coin semi-annually on the first day of June and on the first day of December in each year, (the first payment to be made on the first day of December, A. D. 1896) upon presentation and surrender of the coupons therefor to the said bonds annexed as they severally mature without deduction for any United States, State or municipal tax which may be required by law to be deducted by said Company from the said interest the said The Philadelphia and Bristol Passenger Railway Company assuming and agreeing to pay the same, and in said bonds it was further provided that if default be made in the payment of the interest coupons to the said bonds attached for a period of sixty days after the same should fall due then the whole principal debt owing upon the bonds should immediately become due and demandable:

AND WHEREAS, It was further stipulated in said mortgage (inter alia) that if default should be made in the payment of the principal or any interest money mentioned in said bonds and coupons or either of them or any part thereof when and as the same should become due and such default should continue for a period of sixty days after demand the said The Security Trust Company may, and upon being requested in writing by the holders of a majority in amount of said bonds then outstanding and upon being properly indemnified against the cost and expenses which may be incurred by acting in pursuance of such request, shall proceed to sell and dispose of all and singular the railways and other property in said mortgage conveyed or intended so to be or such portion thereof as the said The Security Trust Company may deem necessary at public auction in the Borough of Bristol, Pennsylvania, upon such terms as to credit, partial credits and security for payment as it may think proper or expedient after first giving public notice of the time and place of such sale by advertising the same at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers printed and published in the Borough of Bristol and also in one or more newspapers printed and published in the city of Philadelphia and no other notice or demand whatsoever to or upon the said The Philadelphia and Bristol Passenger Railway Company shall be necessary; that the said The Security Trust Company might adjourn such sale from time to time in its discretion and proceed with the same on such adjourned day without further notice and may and shall execute to the purchaser or purchasers at such sale either in its own name or in the name of the said The Philadelphia and Bristol Passenger Railway Company good and sufficient deeds for the property so sold, which said sale shall be a perpetual bar both at law and in equity against the said The Philadelphia and Bristol Passenger Railway Company and all persons claiming by from or under it; the said mortgage further provided how the proceeds of such sale should be distributed and it was therein provided that the receipt or receipts of the said Trustee should be a sufficient discharge of the purchaser or purchasers of the premises for the purchase money and that no purchaser should be liable to see to the application thereof, nor should the purchaser or purchasers be bound to see or inquire whether proper notice of sale had been given or otherwise as to the propriety or regularity of such sale; which said Mortgage was duly acknowledged by the said The Philadelphia and Bristol Passenger Railway Company on the nineteenth day of June, A. D. 1896, and on the twentieth day of June, A. D. 1896, at 9.15 A. M. of said day was duly recorded in the office for the recording of deeds, etc., at Doylestown in and for the County of Bucks, in Mortgage Book No. 125, page 274, etc., reference being thereunto had more fully and at large will appear:

AND WHEREAS, Afterwards, to-wit: On the second day of September, A. D. 1896, under and by virtue of lawful authority duly had in the premises the corporate name of The Security Trust Company was legally and duly changed so as to make the corporate title thereof thereafter be "The Security Trust and Life Insurance Company," under which new name the original corporation of The Security Trust Company, mortgagee in trust as aforesaid, is now to be known:

AND WHEREAS, The said The Security Trust and Life Insurance Company has been requested in writing by the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds in said mortgage mentioned now outstanding to sell the premises set forth and described in said mortgage under the power of sale in said mortgage contained in which said request in writing it is averred that defaults have been made in the payment of the interest money mentioned in the bonds issued in pursuance of the said mortgage and coupons thereto attached, when and as the same became due and payable and that such defaults have continued for a much longer period than sixty days after demand for payment of the said interest had been made at the place of payment in said bonds and coupons mentioned:

AND WHEREAS, The said The Security Trust and Life Insurance Company is satisfied that defaults have been made in the payment of the said interest as provided for in the said mortgage after demand therefor had been duly made and that such defaults have continued for more than a period of sixty days and that such defaults still continue:

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church resumed its regular prayer meeting services in the chapel on last Sunday evening at 6.30 o'clock. The topic for next Sunday evening is "Heavenly Helpers," and the leader Mr. Roberts.

E. Stanton Lawrence, aged thirty-one years, died at the home of his brother, Ernest Lawrence, last Saturday of tuberculosis. The funeral took place on Tuesday, the Rev. E. A. Rook officiating. The interment was at the Bristol Cemetery.

While descending a stairway in Wanamaker's store, Philadelphia, one day last week, Mrs. Theodore Stevens slipped and sprained her ankle. Employes of the store assisted her to the train and although troubled with lameness for several days, she has now fully recovered.

There was a statement in one of yesterday evening's Philadelphia papers that B. F. Gilkeson, Esq., was in Philadelphia yesterday looking for Quay. This Mr. Gilkeson emphatically denies. He says he did not know Mr. Quay was in the city, that he was not looking for him and that he was there on other business.

H. F. McGoan, of Lancaster, is temporarily acting as manager for the local exchange of the Standard Telephone Company. A number of the Standard 'phones have been placed in the business houses of Bristol on trial. The exchange in the old postoffice building is nearly fitted for the transaction of business. Miss Abbie Chase is the operator.

By the explosion of a gasoline stove yesterday morning a woman on Lafayette street was severely burned about the face and arms. When the explosion occurred the woman's dress caught fire but with rare presence of mind she rushed into the yard and rolled over in the high grass, smothering the flames. The skin on one arm is blistered from the wrist to the shoulder.

The new lodge room in the post office building which has been leased by Fidelity Council, No. 21, Jr. O. U. A. M., is fast nearing completion. The platforms have been erected and the cupboards are being built. The contract for the furniture calls for its delivery about the 15th of this month. Two piano firms, the Estey and Heppe, will each place an instrument in the room for one month on trial.

At a meeting of the conferees from the three chartered fire companies held in the parlor of No. 1 engine house on Monday evening, Harry Pedrick, of America Hose, Hook and Ladder Co., No. 2, was placed in nomination for chief, and William Holt, of Good Will Hose Co., No. 3, for assistant chief of the Bristol fire department. Both candidates will be elected at the regular meeting of the Borough Council to be held next Monday evening.

In response to a call from Manager Long of the Burlington Island Park, Mayor Flanders and a detachment of Burlington police went to the park to quell a disturbance which broke out among some picnicers. The picnic party came from the "Neck" in Philadelphia, and spent the greater part of the afternoon in drinking liquor which messengers took them from Bristol. By night the women as well as the men were intoxicated, and the shouts of their carousing could be plainly heard on this side of the river.

Entertained Friends.

The Misses Little, of Bath street, entertained a party of young friends on Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Emma Croll, of Norristown. A very enjoyable evening was spent with music and singing. Refreshments were served.

Base Ball Notes.

Bloomsdale will play Good Will Hose Co.'s base ball team on Saturday at Persimmon Park.

The great game of base ball for the championship of Bristol between the Bristol A. A. and the Athletics failed to come off on account of rain.

First of Its Kind.

The Ball Manufacturing Company which has rented the property near the railroad formerly occupied by E. M. Peirce, will make a specialty of manufacturing golf balls. It is declared this will be the only concern in the United States engaged in such an enterprise. Heretofore all golf balls have been imported.

New Store.

J. K. Ellis has rented the store at 111 Mill street, formerly occupied by F. E. Milburn and on Saturday will open with a new stock of goods, consisting of dry goods, stationery, toilet articles, light hardware, and notions. Mr. Ellis is an experienced merchant, and for years conducted a successful business at Lehighton, Pa. See his ad on first page.

Houses Scarce.

The scarcity of vacant houses in Bristol is becoming to cause serious inconveniences. Two business men who have come to Bristol to reside within the past week, have each searched in vain for a house. In one instance household furniture had to be stored and the hotel resorted to. With the starting up of the new paper mill new families will undoubtedly come to town, when to find houses for them will be a serious problem.

Liked Bristol Music.

The Doylestown Intelligencer says: "The employees of the Intelligencer office were very pleasantly serenaded on Monday afternoon by the Liberty Cornet Band of Bristol, which accompanied the delegation from that town. The men behind the music played several fine selections which were highly appreciated and for which we return sincere thanks. The Liberty Band is one of the best that has visited the county seat for a long time.

Valuable to Quayites.

Sellersville Herald.

"Cappy" Edwards, the erst-while anti-Quay leader of the Bucks county delegation at Harrisburg, has gone over to the stalwarts, says an authoritative newspaper report. Captain Edwards was a very popular representative while at Harrisburg and will prove a valuable adjunct to the Quay regime. His aspirations for Hon. Hampton Rice's place in the State Senate will add some excitement to next year's campaign.

A Straw Ride.

On Friday evening a party of young people from Fallsington came into Bristol and surprised Miss Mary Ennis at her home on Maple street. The evening's amusements consisted of cake walks, dancing and muisc. Those present were: Misses Maggie Ennis, Maggie Dignan, May Landers, Maggie McDonald, Mary Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. William Dafter, Mr. and Mrs. John Ennis, Mrs. Edward Mahan, Mrs. Charles Hagerty, Messrs. Samuel Johnson, Michael Ennis, Harry Ennis, Hugh Garr, and others.

Contract for Tullytown Bridge.

The County Commissioners held a meeting at their office in Doylestown on Thursday for the purpose of receiving bids for the construction of a bridge over Martin's creek, in Tullytown borough. The bids were as follows:

The King Bridge Co.,	$11,100.00
The Berlin Construction Co.,	11,000.00
Nelson & Buchanan,	6,368.00
Joseph Curley,	13,900.00
National Bridge Co.,	7,300.00
Canton Bridge Co.,	7,450.00

Nelson & Bucahnan being the lowest bidders were awarded the contract. The bids presented by the National Bridge Company were not considered owing to the certified checks not being endorsed. The Board adjourned to meet on Monday, September 16.

Coming from Buenos Ayres.

Lyndall Ackers is anxiously awaiting the arrival of his nephew, Willie Welker, aged 13 years, who started six weeks ago, in company with a member of the Salvation Army, from Buenos Ayres, South America, via Liverpool for the United States. Upon his arrival in New York Mr. Ackers is to be notified by telegraph. The six weeks required for the journey have now expired and as no word has yet been received, both Mr. and Mrs. Ackers, are deeply concerned about the child's welfare. Notice has been sent to the quarantine station at Sandy Hook to be on the lookout for the boy, and the Salvation army has been requested to obtain all the information possible regarding their member in whose charge the boy was sent. Harry Welker, the father of the boy, is well known in Bristol, having learned the machinist trade at the Bristol Worsted Mills. Willie is described as a bright little chap who speaks fluently both the German and Spanish languages.

School Board Meeting.

The Public School Board met in regular session in the Directors' room in the high school building on Monday evening. The Directors present were: John K. Wildman, Harvey S. Rue, Edward H. Foster, M. D. Harrison, Abram Ettonger, Manus McGinley, Doron Green. The treasurer reported having received $246.70 from the State Treasurer in payment of one quarter of amount which was deducted from the appropriation due the local schools when Governor Stone cut $1,000,000 off the public school appropriation two years ago. Superintendent Louise D. Baggs reported that the schools had opened on Monday morning with every teacher present and 655 scholars in attendance. This number is 17 in excess of the number enrolled at the opening of the schools last year. All the upper grades are full, the decrease being in the primary grades. A new rule was adopted making the tuition fee for non-residents $2 per month in the high school, $1.75 in the grammar schools, and $1.50 in the lower grades. The Superintendent's and janitors' salaries were drawn for the month of August. An order for $80 was drawn to pay interest on $4,000 bond. Bills amounting to $110.12 were passed and ordered paid.

Basket Ball Notes.

Deal will wear a Bristol uniform this winter.

Stout will captain the Camden team this year.

Bristol players are playing at Atlantic City this week.

The Bristol management has reserved all of its old players.

The Camden cage will be turned around this season and there will be seats all around it the same as is the case at Trenton and Bristol.

In the games at Atlantic City this summer, Mulliner shows that he has developed into one of the best centres in the business. He outclassed all of his opponents at the seashore.

A rumor is in circulation that Harry Hough was going to Pittsburg this winter to play on Sandy Shield's team. Hough has been reserved by Bristol, and there will be trouble if Pittsburg tries any kidnapping business.

There will be three applications for poistions on the National League staff of referees from Trenton. Frank Thompson, Frank Buckley and Edward Stratton all think they would like a shot at the game. All would make efficient officials and all of them will likely get a chance to show what they can do in the way of making National League players observe the new rules.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

The Body of an Unknown Man Struck by the Trolley on Bath Street Monday Night—Pools of Blood near by.

On Monday night at about eleven o'clock the trolley car on the Bristol-Doylestown line struck the body of a man at a point on Bath street opposite the old Bath springs. The car was in charge of George Hibbs, conductor, and Howard Barber, motorman. After crossing the bridge, at the overflow of the lake, as is usual the speed of the car was increased for the straight run down Bath street. When too late to bring the car to a stop the motorman saw the form of a man laying curled up in a heap between the rails. Before the trolley was stopped the victim had been struck and dragged about eighteen yards.

Undertaker Rue was summoned and given charge of the corpse, which was fearfully mangled. The wheels of the car had run over the man's face, crushing in the entire left side, the hands and feet were mangled, and a big hole cut in the shoulders.

The body was buried this morning without identification. The man was apparently about forty years of age, had brown hair and had a moustache of the same color; be was about five feet ten inches in height and would weigh probably 150 pounds.

He was poorly dressed in a rough looking brown-mixed coat, light checked trousers and a brown slouch hat. Upon his right forearm was tatooed a cross and heart and the initials "J. F."

The only articles upon his clothing were a pawn ticket issued Monday, September 2, the same day of the accident, by a pawnbroker at 17th and Market streets, Philadelphia, for fifty cents for a coat. A memorandum book containing some names of women, and an excess baggage check on a New England railroad were also found.

MURDER SUSPECTED.

Upon investiagtion on Tuesday suspicions of foul play were aroused by the discovery of three pools of blood on the old Bath road along the edge of the lake, about 60 paces opposite the point on the trolley track where the body was run over. A new Derby hat was also found within a few feet of the blood stains. The hat was a new one, 7¼ size and had the trademark of Logue's, 1236 Market street, Philadelphia. Under the band of the hat was a portion of the Newtown Enterprise of the date of August 31, which had been folded and placed under the band, evidently for the purpose of making the hat fit better.

The supposition is that the unknown man was murdered and carried over to the trolley and placed on the track.

Coroner Kunsman, of Morrisville, held an inquest at Fine's Hotel last night.

The jury was composed of the following: Henry Rue, Michael J. Wheeler, William Washington, William H. Holt, W. Firman Young and Frank H. Flum.

A number of witnesses were examined, and in the end the jury was unable to render a verdict and asked for a continuance awaiting further developments.

The inquest developed two facts that support the theory of foul play. Howard Barber, of Newtown, the motorman, testified that his car was on time and running at the usual speed and after drifitng over the Bath bridge and rounding the curve at that point, he saw ahead of him an object on the track about fifty feet ahead of him. Before the car could be brought to a stand-still he struck the object and dragged it about three car lengths. Upon getting close to the object he discovered it was the body of a man laying crosswise of the tracks, his head resting on one rail and his feet drawn up under his chin. Barber and the conductor, George Hibbs, went back, struck some matches, examined the body and found he was dead. They let the body lay, went on into the terminal and summoned officers Tice and Wilkinson and Undertaker Young, of Rue's establishment, and went back and got the body, and examined the surroundings.

In answer to questions by Chief Saxton, Barber testified that before the car struck the unknown man, he was motionless and gave no signs of life, and there was no sound uttered after being struck.

The conductor's testimony was of a similar nature.

Mrs. Sophia Francis, a colored woman, testified that at 10.30 o'clock Monday night she saw two men leading a drunken man out Bath street in the direction of the scene of the accident. The drunken man wore a brown felt hat similar to that worn by the victim. The drunken man was entirely helpless and was supported by his two companions.

Harry Goslin, Fred Vansant and Jacob Hellings were also examined but their evidence was immaterial.

Chief Saxton and Constable Rue are still working on the case. An attempt will be made to find the owner of the derby hat, as it is believed that if successful an important witness would be found.

One of the theories is that the unknown man waylaid the owner of the derby hat and attacked him, and in a fight the aggressor was either killed or mortally injured, and in order to cover the traces of the deed the victim was dragged over to the track and placed on the rails.

Reduced Rates to San Francisco.

On account of the Triennial Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, to be held at San Francisco beginning October 2, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell round-trip tickets to San Francisco from all points on its line at greatly reduced rates.

Tickets will be sold September 18 to 25, inclusive, and will be good to leave San Francisco not earlier than October 3, and only on date of execution by Joint Agent, to whom a fee of fifty cents must be paid, and passengers must reach original starting point by November 15, 1901.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will also run a Personally-Conducted Tour to the Pacific Coast on this occasion by special train, starting September 23 and returning October 22. Round-trip rate, $185.

For further informaion apply to ticket agents, or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

"Gallows" is now called "Mellow."

The postoffice known as Gallows, in this county, has been changed, and will hereafter be known as Mellow. The postmaster and citizens, in petitioning the Postmaster General for this change of name, cited the fact that the word "Gallows" was very disagreeable to the patrons of the office, and ended by saying that "the name is neither beautiful nor appropriate."

The following details from the Firemen's Herald show the extraordinary precautions taken to guard Independence Hall, Philadelphia, from destruction by fire. Watchmen maintain a patrol every hour of the day and night, and the only lights permitted in the old building are those used to illuminate the clock at night. For the boilers used to heat the building fire-proof vaults have been provided under the archways, and only two electric wires are allowed. Chief Baxter has provided for the appearance of six engines, two trucks and a chemical engine within two minutes after an alarm is sent in from the fire-alarm box in the square. There are standing instructions that, if fire should gain headway in the structure, a general alarm shall be sent in, calling to the scene twenty-six fire engines, six trucks, and another chemical engine, as well as the chief and nine district engineers. Every wire in the vicinity of the hall is specially insulated, and officers of the fire department regularly join the watchmen in inspecting the edifice. Portable fire extinguishers are scattered about the building, and directions for saving the famous old portraits that hang on the walls are conspicuously posted. There is a peremptory order displayed that reads: "In case of fire get the Liberty Bell out of danger at any cost."

Basket Ball News.

Officers were elected, changes in rules adopted and other matters preliminary to the opening of the basket ball season decided upon at the annual meeting of the magnates held Saturday and Sunday at Atlantic City.

The officers for the coming season will be: President, J. F. Neill; vice-president, Charles Reed, Jr., of New York, and secretary-treasurer, Albert Austermuhl, of Camden.

The season will open earlier this season, the first league game in Trenton being scheduled for Satuday night, October 26. The number of games to be played by each team has been increased so that this season every team will have forty league games instead of thirty as was the case last season.

Secretary Austermuhl is to prepare the schedule and have it ready to present to the managers for adoption in two weeks.

The teams to compromise the league will be the same as last season.

Referees will not be named until the next meeting. There are a dozen or more applications.

Among the new rules adopted are the following:

All cages are to be like the Trenton cage with round corners and 65 by 35.

This will make radical changes necessary in Camden, Millville and the Penn Bikers.

All baskets must be twelve inches from the back screen. This will cut out the combination baskets scored so frequently last season and make the scoring less and far more scientific. Last season the baskets were but six inches from the backing.

In playing an opponent from the rear in the future but one arm can be used.

The matter of so much time being taken out for alleged injuries was taken up and it was decided to allow each team to have time out four times in each half and no more.

These are the important changes and there were several minor ones which will not effect the game in any way.

Interest seems to be on the increase and all of the managers are looking for the best season yet. Every effort will be made to make the task of the referees easier and to promote clean ball at all hazards.

Survivors' Association Reunion.

The twelfth annual reunion of the 10th Pennsylvania Volunteers will be held at Menlo Park, Perkasie, on Thursday, the 19th inst. President William R. Elliott, of the Association, has issued the following bulletin:

The survivors of the 104th Regiment have reason to be proud of the great receptions heretofore accorded them at the annual reunions in the towns of Bucks county, and they are very grateful for the generous entertainment given at each one. The Fortieth Anniversary of the organization of the Regiment will be observed by the citizens of Perkasie as a public holiday. The town will be decorated, business will be suspended, the secret societies and school children will assist in the escort and reception, and the comrades of the G. A. R. Posts between Allentown and Philadelphia have been invited to attend in our honor.

After arrival at Perkaise, our business meeting will be held in the hall of Post 622, G. A. R. It is hoped that all our comrades will join us at that time, so that our business matters may be promptly disposed of, and the arranged programme of our generous hosts may be carried out without delay.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet at the same time, the place to be designated later.

Badges will be supplied for members exclusively, while a different design will be furnished for the Ladies' Auxiliary and guests.

At the conclusion of the business meetings, the Association will be escorted by the various organizations to Menlo Park, a short distance from the town, where dinner will be provided. Arrangements are being made to place the 104th people at table by companies.

Trolley cars run direct to the park.

After the dinner the formal reception exercises will be held. Eminent speakers will address the meeting, among whom are Hon. Irving P. Wanger, of the Seventh Congress District; General B. Frank Fisher, Chief Signal Officer Army of the Potomac; General W. W. H. Davis, Commander of the 104th.

A cordial invitation is extended the widows, wives and daughters to join the Ladies' Auxiliary. Mrs. S. A. Wallazz, Treasurer, No. 1927 Orleans street, Philadelphia.

Please notify the Secretary at once whether you will attend and how many of your family will be with you. The Executive Committee at Perkasie desires this information in order to properly provide or all.

Also furnish the Secretary with the name, company and date of death of 104th men during the past year.

From Philadelphia, take train leaving Reading Terminal at 8 A. M.; Columbia avenue, 8.07; Huntingdon street, 8.11; Wayne Junction, 8.16, and Jenkintown, 8.27. Arrive at Lansdale 9.03, and Perkasie, 9.28.

Fare, round trip, $1.10, good only on 8 o'clock train, but good on any train returning same day, at 2.02, 5.18, 6.51 P. M.

Care should be taken to obtain tickets from our Committee, in order to secure the reduced fare. Cars will be reserved.

The Transportation Committee expect to secure reduced rates on other sections of the Reading system.

Fraternally,

WILLIAM R. ELLIOTT, President.

E. S. McINTOSH, Secretary,
1641 Huntingdon stree, Philadelphia.

A man talks about owning his business. But, as a matter of fact his business owns him. His whole life is regulated by the demands of the business. The time at which he rises, his breakfast hour, the time given to meals, are all determined by business obligations. He rushes through lunch because he "can't spare the time from business" to eat leisurely. He won't take a rest because he is needed at the store or office. He is in fact an absolute slave to buisness. The results which follow this slavery are to be seen on every hand. Men dyspeptic, irritable, nervous, with drawn faces, and hollow eyes, sit at the desk or stand behind the counter until they collapse in a fit of sickness, or are taken away by heart failure. Those who cannot escape the exactions of business will find a friend in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, increases the action of the blood-making glands, increasing the vitality and physical vigor. It makes men strong and prevents those business break downs which so often terminate fatally.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION PROPOSED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as amendments to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:

Amendment One to Article Eight, Section One.

Add at the end of the first paragraph of said section, after the words "shall be entitled to vote at all elections," the words "subject however to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the General Assembly may enact," so that the said section shall read as follows:

Section 1. Qualifications of Electors. Every male citizen twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject however to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the General Assembly may enact:

1. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

2. He shall have resided in the State one year (or, having previously been a qualified elector or native born citizen of the State, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months,) immediately preceding the election.

3. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

4. If twenty-two years of age and upwards, he shall have paid within two years a State or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election.

Amendment Two to Article Eight, Section Seven.

Strike out from said section the words "but no elector shall be deprived of the privilege of voting by reason of his name not being registered," and add to said section the following words, "but laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only, provided that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class," so that the said section shall read as follows:

Section 7. Uniformity of Election Laws.—All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens or for the registration of electors shall be uniform throughout the State, but laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only, provided that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class.

THE GHOST IN THE INN

HE WAS THE MEANS OF AVENGING HIS OWN ASSASSINATION.

A Vision and a Finger Ring That Impressed the Comte de Fersen—A Persistent Spirit That Was Bound to Have Justice Done.

In "The Story of My Life," by Mr. Augustus J. C. Hare, are told some thrilling ghost stories.

One of the most remarkable of the stories is that which Lord Ravensworth made Mr. Hare write down. It was originally related by Comte de Fersen, the devoted adherent of Marie Antoinette, who, when the royal family escaped to Varennes, drove the carriage. After Marie Antoinette's execution he went to Italy, and one afternoon in November he drove up to what was then, and is still, the most desolate, weird, ghastly inn in Italy—the wind stricken, storm beaten, lava seated inn of Radicofani. As he was unable to secure post horses Comte de Fersen was obliged to stay all night. When he went to bed, he took two precautions.

He drew a little round table that was there to the head of the bed and put two loaded pistols upon it, and, according to the custom of that time, he made the courier sleep across the door on the outside. He went to bed and he fell asleep, and in the middle of the night the comte awoke with the indescribable sensation that people have that he was not alone in the room, and he raised himself against the pillow and looked out.

From a small latticed window high in the opposite whitewashed wall the moonlight was pouring into the room and making a white silvery pool in the middle of the rough boarded oak floor. In the middle of this pool of light, dressed in a white cap and jacket and trousers, such as masons wear, stood the figure of a man looking at him. Comte de Fersen stretched out his hand over the side of the bed to take one of his pistols, and the man said: "Don't fire. You could do no harm to me; you could do a great deal of harm to yourself. I am come to tell you something."

Comte de Fersen looked at him; he did not come any nearer; he remained just where he was, standing in the pool of white moonlight, half way between the bed and the wall, and he said: "Say on. Tell me what you have come for."

And the figure said: "I am dead, and my body is underneath your bed. I was a mason of Radicofani, and as a mason I wore the white dress in which you now see me. My wife wished to marry somebody else; she wished to marry the landlord of this hotel, and they beguiled me into the inn, and they made me drunk, and they murdered me, and my body is buried beneath where your bed now stands. I died with the word 'vendette' upon my lips, and the longing, the thirst that I have for revenge will not let me rest. And I never shall rest, I never can have any rest, till I have had my revenge. Now, I know that you are going to Rome; when you get to Rome, go to the cardinal commissary of police and tell him what you have seen, and he will send men down here to examine the place, and my body will be found, and I shall have my revenge."

And the Comte de Fersen said, "I will."

But the spirit laughed and said: "You don't suppose that I am going to believe that? You don't imagine that you are the only person I have come to like this? I have come to dozens, and they have all said, 'I will,' and afterward what they have seen has seemed like a hallucination, a dream, a chimera, and, before they have reached Rome, the impression has vanished altogether and nothing has been done. Give me your hand."

The Comte de Fersen was a little staggered at this. However, he was a brave man, and he stretched out his hand and he felt something or other happen to one of his fingers, and he looked, and there was no finger, only the moonlight streaming in through the little latticed window.

In the morning, when he got up and had begun to wash his hands, he found on one of his fingers a very curious, old iron ring, which was certainly not there before.

Comte de Fersen went to Rome, and when he arrived there he went to the Swedish minister, who then was a certain Count Lowenjelm, who was very much impressed with the story. But a person who was much more impressed was the minister's younger brother, for he had a valuable collection of peasants' jewelry, and when he saw the ring he said, "That is a very remarkable ring, for it is a kind of ring only made and worn in one place, and that place is in the mountains near Radicofani."

The two Counts Lowenjelm went with Comte de Fersen to the cardinal commissary of police. The cardinal was very much struck, and he said: "It is a very extraordinary story, and I am quite inclined to believe that it means something. But, as you know, I am in a great position of trust under the government, and I cannot send a body of military down to Radicofani upon the faith of what may prove to have been a dream. At any rate, I could not do it unless Comte de Fersen proved his sense of the importance of such an action by being willing to return to Radicofani himself."

Not only was Comte de Fersen willing to return, but the Count Karl Lowenjelm went with him. The landlord and landlady were excessively agitated when they saw them return with the soldiers, who came from Rome. They moved the bed and found that the flags beneath had been recently upturned. They took up the flags, and there, not sufficiently corrupted to be unrecognizable, was the body of the mason, dressed in the white cap and jacket and trousers as he had appeared to the Comte de Fersen.

Then the landlord and landlady, in true Italian fashion, felt that Providence was against them, and they confessed everything. They were taken to Rome, where they were tried and condemned to death, and they were beheaded at the Bocca della Verita. The Count Karl Lowenjelm was present at the execution of that man and woman, and he was the person who told Lord Ravensworth, who told me. In 1879 I repeated the story to the crown prince of Sweden and Norway, who took the trouble to verify the facts and dates as to the Lowenjelms, etc., and found everything coincide.

Her Invitation.

"Why, Clara, you look radiant! What has happened?"

"I've just received an invitation to a wedding."

"Well, there's nothing particular in that to go into raptures over."

"Yes, but it happens to be my own," and she showed the new engagement ring.

A Sparrow's Borrowed Notes.

Very remarkable is the instance of a sparrow imitating the stridulation of the grasshopper. One spring a cage containing a sparrow was hung side by side with another in which were grasshoppers. No notice was taken by the sparrow of his neighbors, but next year, when he was again in the same society, he essayed the grasshoppers' chant. And for the rest of his life, when the grasshoppers had long been dead, the sparrow was accustomed to utter a polyglot song combining the notes of the insect and those of other birds. The fact that young linnets will sometimes learn the song of the nightingale instead of their own is mentioned. And it is also stated that several kinds of birds in Thuringia sing much better than the members of their own species dwelling in the Harz mountains.—Revue Scientifique.

HARD ON THE YOUNGSTERS.

Some of the Words They Must Master Only to Forget.

"What's a dune?" asked the practical man.

"A dune," answered the practical man's wife, "a dune is—er—er, why, a dune—I believe I've forgotten just what a dune is. What do you want to know for, anyway?"

"What's a dure?"

"A dure! I don't think I ever heard of a dure."

"What's a pirn?" continued the practical man.

"Now, see here," said the wife firmly, "I'm not a dictionary, and I don't pretend to be one. But I'd like to ask you one question in return. What's that book you have in your hand and have been getting all those obsolete or impossible words from? Must be a copy of the ancients."

"Well, it isn't," answered the man doggedly enough. "It's a copy of the spelling book that your young hopeful, aged 9, struggles with every day in his school life. Now, what do you think of that?"

"You are always talking about the beauties of the present day system of instructing children. How do you like this system? Well, I'll bet there isn't one man in twenty, outside of the fellows who are themselves engaged in educational forms, who could tell offhand the meaning of a lot of these words that occur in this very primitive book. It's a good thing for the parents to look into these matters once in awhile."

"I'm sure I didn't know those words were in the book," said the woman meekly. "Are you sure you haven't picked up a high school book?"

"High school nothing," retorted the man. "See for yourself. This is Tommy's spelling book. Let's go a little further into this thing. Look at this." The man turned the page and read, "Cives, torque, fyke, tete, sice, tige, feoff, gyre, oppugn, rasure and obligor." "I'll tell you what I'll do, Maria. If you'll take a pencil and a piece of paper and write opposite each of these words its correct meaning, without consulting the dictionary, I'll write you a check for a new tailor made gown at Mme. Swellun's. Now, here's a chance for you to score one for the merits of the present educational system and at the same time get a new gown."

"Why, really," said the wife of the practical man, "why, you know"—

"Yes," said the practical man, "I certainly do know. I know you wouldn't miss an opportunity to get a new dress. Here's another thing. If there is anything I do hate, it is affectation, and this spelling book puts a direct premium on affectation. Every well regulated child calls its parents 'mamma and papa,' respectively, accenting the first syllables. Here is this book insisting that the words shall be, as the English have them, 'mamma and papa,' with the last syllables accented.

"A little common sense is a wholesome thing. But it seems to have escaped the framers of the spelling books for our children."—Philadelphia Press.

SELECTING A DEGREE.

The Bishop, the Young Professor and a Bad Case of Shock.

A prominent university once invited a distinguished bishop to be present at its commencement exercises and to deliver an address. After he had signified his acceptance of the invitation the university authorities thought that it would be a very graceful act on their part to show their appreciation of his presence by conferring upon him an honorary degree, and so in order to arrange the matter in proper form they delegated one of their number to visit the bishop and notify him of their intentions.

The person selected for this mission was a callow young professor who had not long occupied his chair and who still regarded his university as representing pretty nearly all the world that counts and a portion of the rest of the universe besides. He was immensely impressed with the importance of this mission and with the general tremendousness of the honor which he was going to announce. Reaching the city where the bishop lived, he went to the episcopal residence and after sending in his card was ushered into the bishop's study. With bated breath and many circumlocutions, lest the bishop should be too much overcome if the news were sprung upon him without a certain amount of preparation, he delivered the message with which he had been charged.

"I have also to inform you," he added, "that the university will consult your preference in the matter of the degree and will confer upon you the one that you would most desire to have."

"Oh!" said the bishop. "Let me see. What particular degree did they have in mind?"

"Of course the very highest, one which belongs to the doctorate—LL. D., D. D., S. T. D. or D. C. L."

"Well," said the bishop, looking out of the window and then at his watch, "suppose you make it a D. C. L. I think I have fewer of those than of the other kinds."

It took the callow young professor a long while to recover from the shock, but when he came to think it over it probably taught him something he had never known before.

TAMING A PIANIST.

The Effective Trick That Was Once Played on Franz Liszt.

The famous pianist and composer Franz Liszt was once made the victim of a good practical joke.

It happened in Rome at the house of a certain princess who had invited a number of guests to meet Liszt and assured them that they should have an opportunity of enjoying his playing. The princess was well acquainted with two of Liszt's peculiarities. He was so passionately fond of playing that it was difficult for him to keep his fingers away from the keys; but, nevertheless, like many other pianists, he expected to be urgently entreated and coaxed before he would condescend to perform.

On this occasion his hostess was determined to make him play without a word of entreaty. It was agreed by the whole company not only that Liszt should not be asked to play, but that the subject of music should not be mentioned. The piano was even closed and locked and the key hidden. Liszt came and soon saw that he was not to conquer. His usual triumphant expression vanished as he perceived that for once he was not apparently regarded as the lion of the hour.

Not a word was spoken of music, and Liszt became visibly uneasy in mind. As the evening wore on he grew more and more excited. That his fingers were itching with the desire to play was obvious to all, but nobody helped him out. At last, when he could stand the strain no longer, he took advantage of a lull in the conversation, seated himself unbidden at the piano and attempted to raise the lid.

The laughter and applause that followed the unsuccessful attempt showed Liszt that he was the victim of a conspiracy. But his love for playing was too strong for his resentment. The key was brought and Liszt played, to the delight of his enraptured audience.

Neither Caught On.

Pat—Are you good at arithmetic, Mike?

Mike—I am.

Pat—Well, if you had 10 shillings and I asked you for the lend of five, how much would you have left?

Mike (strongly)—Ten shillings.

Pat—Ah, you don't seem to ketch on to my idea.

Mike—No, and you don't seem to ketch on to my 5 shillings.—London Answers.

The Invention of Spectacles.

The honor and credit of pointing out the benefit of glasses to aid defective vision belongs to Roger Bacon, who lived from 1214 to 1292. Spectacles were actually invented in the year 1280, the man who conferred this great blessing on suffering humanity being Alexander Spinia, a monk of Pisa, who died in 1313.

AN EXCITING BATTLE

STORY OF A FIERCE FIGHT WITH AN INDIAN PANTHER.

A Clinch With the Man Eating Brute That Would Have Been Fatal to the Hunter but For a Timely Shot From a Rescue Party.

An exciting story of a fight with a panther is given by a writer in The Asian. The incident occurred while three sportsmen were shooting small game in the Western Ghats, a range of mountains in southern India. Listening intently, B. fancied that he caught the word "bagh," but it was impossible to distinguish sounds clearly in the pandemonium that was going on, and it seemed almost incredible that anything in the way of big game could have remained in the beat so late. So, putting the fancy concerning the word he had heard down to imagination or else the possibility of a small wildcat—for natives call everything of the cat species "bagh"—he did not change his small shot cartridges.

Three minutes afterward there was a stealthy rustle in the tangled grass and bushes to his front, and, expecting a hare or a jungle fowl, he threw his gun forward just as the bushes parted and the savage head of a huge panther rose into view about 25 yards away. Utterly staggered, B. lowered his gun again. To fire at a panther with small shot is wise only when you are anxious to obtain an express passage to the next world, and before he could change his cartridge the brute had seen him and had slunk silently back into the undergrowth, B. catching a glimpse of his heavy tawny body gliding laterally across the beat in the direction of F.'s station. Springing to his feet and shouting a hasty word of warning to F., which, it afterward appeared, the latter heard only imperfectly, B. replaced his shot cartridge with ball and attempted to follow the panther.

But the undergrowth was thick, and, his progress being necessarily slow, he had not proceeded more than a few yards when a shot rang out, quickly followed by another, and the next second F.'s voice reached him, vigorously shouting for assistance.

"B., H., for heaven's sake look sharp or I'm done for!" This was followed by muffled growls and snarls, coupled with reiterated but fainter shouts for help from F. Crashing blindly through the undergrowth toward the sounds, B. stumbled almost on his head into the comparative open jungle which fronted F.'s station. As he did so and vainly tried to steady his pulse and hand, H., from the opposite direction, also burst on the scene. And the sight they both saw was sufficiently fearful.

F., on one knee, holding the panther by the throat at arm's length with his left hand, while with his right he was making spasmodic efforts to draw his hunting knife. And such was the terrific power of his desperate grip that the panther's tongue was protruding and its eyes almost starting from its head. But, although F.'s immense physical strength, still further increased by the despair which redoubles one's forces, prevented the brute from closing and using its teeth, yet it was kicking with its hind claws exactly as a cat does when its stomach is tickled, and the bone of F.'s left arm was stripped almost bare of the skin and flesh, which was hanging in gory festoons nearly up to the shoulder. Sick at the sight, the whole scene for the moment swam before B.'s eyes; but, recalled to his manlier self by a piteous entreaty from poor F., who was weakening rapidly, to chance shooting him, B. braced up and ran toward the scene of the terrible conflict. H., however, would have been before him but that a root caught his foot as he ran and sent him sprawling. The next second B. had run up close and blown the savage brute's brains out just as F. fell in a heap with the dead panther on the top of him.

An improvised litter and a rapid removal to the nearest small station, about 12 miles, followed, and for many a week F. kept his bed. When he eventually recovered, his arm was like a withered limb and has been of little use to him since.

It afterward was learned that F. had heard imperfectly B.'s warning shout and, after hesitating, had decided not to change his cartridges. The panther had shrunk silently across his front, and, hastily cramming in a ball cartridge, F. had taken a snap shot at him just as he was disappearing. This had taken effect much too far back, inflicting only a flesh wound, and the brute had at once turned and charged straight at F. The left barrel, loaded only with small shot and possibly fired with a certain amount of trepidation, had aggravated him still further, and it was undoubtedly only his magnificent physique which saved F. from losing his life on the spot.

Excusable Ignorance.

When will employers learn not to expect unreasonable things of their servants?

A New York man was put out of patience by some blunder of his new groom.

"Look here!" he cried in his anger. "I won't have things done in this way! Do you think I'm a fool?"

"Shure, sorr," said the groom, "Oi can't say, sorr. I only came here yesterday."—Exchange.

Red Heads Don't Go Mad.

The reason why dark haired and dark skinned people are more inclined to mental disorder than the lighter haired and complexioned has never, so far as our recollection serves, been accounted for by the wise in such matters. It may perhaps be consoling to the fair skinned to hear that in one madhouse out of 200 patients only four have light hair and complexions and one red hair.—Health.

Dog Days.

Dog days are so called from Sirius, the most brilliant of the fixed stars in the head of the constellation Canis Major, or the Greater Dog, and include the period from July 3 to Aug. 11. During this period this star and the sun rise within the same hour, and the ancients, who worshiped the dog, attributed the existence of summer to the influence of this constellation, a superstition which has been perpetuated to the present day in the use of the term.

True to His Chum.

It might have been a mistaken idea of boyish honor that prompted him to do it, but who could but admire the spirit of the little fellow who while he lay dying in a New York hospital refused to tell the name of the companion who had pushed him from a freight car and brought him to his death? "Don't cry, mamma," he said after his crushed legs had been amputated. "It wouldn't be fair to tell. He didn't mean to hurt me." And, with his hand clutching his mother's tightly, the boy who was true to his chum even to death passed away.—Leslie's Weekly.

SOMETHING ABOUT BOILS.

Slight Injuries, High Living and Close Shaving May Cause Them.

Contrary to the common belief, boils are not indicative of blood disease. They are really indications of local poisoning by pus bearing germs, and the boil is an abscess. Every pus prick, every scratch, every abrasion, every cut with a razor or pocketknife, every splinter that enters the skin may cause a boil. Nor need the wound be a serious one. It may be so minute as to be invisible to the unaided eye. Nor is the result always produced, for if it should be, every slight wound, every thorn prick, every scratch of a cat, every bite of a dog, every abrasion of the skin, would be followed by disastrous, if not fatal, consequences. The reason for this immunity is that there is a certain inherent power of the body to resist these noxious agents, and it is only when the powers of the body are weakened by disease that the morbific agents can thrive in the body and accomplish their evil work.

In this sense, then, boils are diseases due to diseases of the blood, but it is not a disease in itself. High living also favors boils. Dr. Reid, speaking of pus and incidentally of boils, says: "Job was probably run down by a long period of debauchery. We read that the devil had him in tow some time before his boils broke out. If, now, he could have had the counsel of three good physicians instead of as many tiresome theologians, he would have had his system toned up; his broken potsherd, with which 'he scraped himself withal,' thus spreading sympathy, and infection would have been taken from him, and he would have been taught a few lessons in sanitary science instead of theology."

The reason why a boil is always in the worst place is because that is the most exposed place. The back of the neck, where the collar rubs the microbes into the skin; the wrist, where the cuffs irritate and make the entrance of germs more easy; the top of the foot, where the shoe pinches; the razor swept chin, are all favorite "worst places."—American Druggist and Pharmaceutical Record.

Time Needed For a Leg's Toilet.

Insurance collectors, visiting many families daily, hear odd remarks sometimes. A collector called the other night upon a railway watchman. A little girl came to the door and said, "I guess you can't see father because he's got his leg off." The collector looked sympathetic and said in a shocked voice: "My, oh, my! How did that happen?" The little girl made answer; "Oh, he takes it off every night before he goes to bed. He's got a wooden leg." Her father didn't care, she added, to go to the trouble of putting the leg on again until next morning, as it required 15 minutes to adjust the straps.—Philadelphia Record.

TOUR TO THE PACIFIC COAST.

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO VISIT CALIFORNIA UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD'S PERSONALLY-CONDUCTED SYSTEM.

In view of the great popularity of transcontinental travel under the Personally-Conducted System, as evinced in the recent Pennsylvania Railroad Tour to the Pacific Coast and Canadian Northwest, that company has decided to run another tour to the Pacific Coast, including in the itinerary a visit to the world-famous Grand Canon of Arizona, in the early fall. The tour will leave New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad east of Pittsburg on Monday September 23 and reach New York on the homeward trip Tuesday October 22.

As in former tours to California under the auspices off the Pennsylvania Railroad a special train composed of the highest class of Pullman equipment, will be utilized during the entire trip. Excellent meals will be served in the dining cars attached to the train during the entire journey, except during the stops at San Francisco and in Chicago. An observation car will appeal to all who delight in scenery. Few trips afford so great a diversity in Nature's beauties as the one outlined below. Westward bound, the tourists will pass through the wild slopes of the Colorado Rockies, around the Great Salt Lake, and over the fastnesses of the Sierra Nevada. After visiting all the beautiful resorts on the sunny California slopes, the eastward journey will be through the Arizona desert to the Grand Canon of Arizona. Its beauties cannot be painted in mere words. Magnificent in coloring, awful in its depths it stands among the natural wonders of the world. Thence across the plains to St. Louis and eastward through Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania the tourists reach their destination just thirty days after leaving home.

The various transcontinental lines having made low rates on account of the General Triennial Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is enabled to offer this superb vacation trip at the low rate of $185 for the round trip from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington or any point on the Pennsylvania Railroad east of Pittsburg one in a berth; and $165 for the round trip two persons occupying the same berth. The rate from Pittsburg will be $5 less.

Diagrams are now open and as the number who can be accommodated will be strictly limited names should be registered immediately.

Reduced Rates to Cleveland.

On account of the Thirty-fifth Annual Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, to be held at Cleveland, Ohio, September 10 to 14, inclusive, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to Cleveland from stations on its line, at greatly reduced rates.

Tickets will be sold and good going September 8 to 12, inclusive; good to return until September 15, inclusive; but by depositing ticket with joint agent at Cleveland, prior to noon of September 15, and the payment of fifty cents, return limit may be extended to October 8, inclusive.

For specific rates and further information apply to ticket agents.

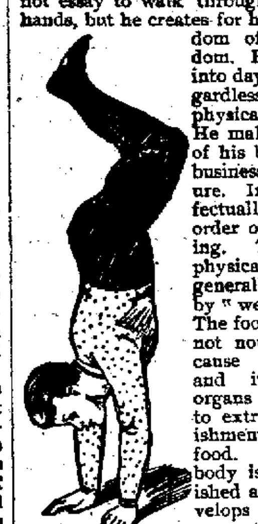
He Owes His Life to the Forethought of a Companion.

While on a camping trip in Webster county, Mr. S. I. Stump, of Normantown, W. Va., had a severe attack of bloody flux. He says, "I firmly believe that I owe my life to the forethought of one of the company who had taken along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy." Moral.—Procure a bottle of this remedy before leaving home. It cannot be obtained when on a hunting, fishing or prospecting trip. Neither can it be obtained while on board the cars or steamship, and at such times and places it is most likely to be needed. The safe way is to have it with you. Thousands of travelers never leave home on a journey without it. For sale by all druggists.

Topsy-turvy.

That's a favorite attitude of the small boy. And in this again "the child is the father of the man." The man does not essay to walk through life on his hands, but he creates for himself a kingdom of topsy-turvydom. He turns night into day. He eats regardless of time and physical necessities. He makes a pleasure of his business and a business of his pleasure. In fact, he effectually reverses the order of natural living. The result is physical disability generally introduced by "weak" stomach. The food he eats does not nourish him because the stomach and its associated organs are not able to extract the nourishment from the food. Hence, the body is under nourished and disease develops in one form or another.



Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases which originate in a diseased condition of the stomach and its allied organs. Hence, it cures "weak" lungs, "weak" heart, "weak" nerves and other forms of so-called weakness.

"I had been troubled with catarrh of the stomach and heart trouble," writes Mr. W. D. Merchant, of Tylersburg, Clarion Co., Penn'a. "Had doctored for some time without relief, then I began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took seven bottles. Before I began to take it I weighed 119 pounds, and now I weigh 176. I am working steadily and feel like a well man. I send you many thanks."

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by all druggists.

"SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old an experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B 788, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.
